THE RESULTS OF THE BATTLE.

The only news of the Russian Army to-day is that attempts have been made to hinder the progress of the pursuers by destroying the bridges at Kai-Yuen, which is a station north of Tieling on the line to Kharbin, and was evacuated by the Russians on Saturday. We are in ignorance as to whether a decision has been taken to halt only at Kharbin, which is about 200 miles north of Kai Yuen, or to keep up a show of fighting with the victorious enemy at every point of vantage. But it is clear that no serious resistance can be offered, for the once mighty host is an army only in name, a mob with, or in many cases without, rifles. Guns, stores, ammunition, transport, all are gone, and with them the morale of the army, the last shred of confidence in its leaders. The demoralisation which it took two months of the retreat from Moscow to accomplish, has been effected in a fortnight of battle. The narratives which are now arriving, though they only tell what one knew must be happening, represent the whole district to the north of Mukden as an inferno of human suffering; no medical service in the world could cope with the mass of wounded that have been flung upon the Russian surgeons; antiseptics, anaesthetics, all that modern science has devised for the mitigation of suffering, are lost or exhausted, and amid horrors indescribable, and confusion inconceivable, has come the end of the great Manchurian Army. Yet for the moment Pharaoh has hardened his heart. The tales of horror and unparalleled disaster have had no effect upon the Tsar, except to strengthen his determination. At the Imperial Council held last week it was resolved to continue the war to the last gasp, to call out fresh Reserves, and to mobilise another 400,000 men. In any country but Russia it would be impossible to treat such madness in earnest. It took over a year to bring up from Russia the army which has just undergone so frightful a defeat; yet the railway was in full working order, during the earlier part of the war the confidence of the nation and the soldiery was unbroken, and an unbroken force guarded the railroad. To collect a fresh army and transport it to Manchuria is, probably, beyond the capacity of the Russian Empire, however much the truth may be disguised from its ruler; and even if such an army were to be organised, the inferiority of the Russians in the battlefield has been only too painfully manifested. Yet, granting all this, we believe that for the present, at any rate, there is small likelihood of pacific counsels being listened to. The Tsar, has always believed implicitly in the ultimate triumph of Holy Russia, and his obstinate disposition, backed by his evil genius in the shape of Admiral Alexeieff, shows no signs of yielding. You may break an autocrat, but you cannot bend him. The Government, moreover, have only too good a reason to dread the return of the beaten army; the tales which the disbanded soldiery would have to tell must add fuel to the flames of revolution that already are gathering head through every portion of the Empire. We can understand that a man so utterly unacquainted with the realities of war as the Tsar has shown himself may point to the vast untapped reserves of men in Russia, and to the nucleus of an army still in Manchuria, and may declare that in his opinion the war is only just begun. Nevertheless, there are signs that at the latest Council of War the Tsar was made conscious of the gross deceptions of which he has been the victim, and of the crisis to which ambition has brought him.

There is yet another card, however, which is being played by the war party. Rodjestevenky's squadrons are still intact, and by this time, after their practice in drill and in manoeuvres, are a really formidable fighting force. The stories of their unseaworthiness may be put aside; ships can be cleansed and scoured in still water without the necessity of being docked. Still less is there any foundation for the idea that the Baltic Fleet will be recalled. Rodjestevenky is a man of determination, and orders are imperative, to seek out the foe now that there is no Port Arthur to be relieved, and deal a blow which may, at any rate, save the Russian naval honor and give the Government at home something with which to allay public despair. A drawn engagement, or even a lost battle in which the Japanese suffered material damage, would be the first step to peace. We do not wish to be understood as thinking that anything which Rodjestevenky may achieve can alter the balance in the Far East. He has come much too late, and even supposing, what we do not think either probable or possible, that he inflicted a decisive defeat on Togo, could he now do anything to interfere with the Japanese armies in Manchuria? Oyama by this time is well-nigh independent of sea transport, and he has, apart from his own magazines, the whole of the Chinese province to draw supplies from. Besides this the completion of the Chemulpo-Fusan Railway has reduced the length of sea that has to be traversed to a matter of 50 miles, while the fortification of the Tsushima islands would render an effective blockade most difficult even to a more numerous and more efficient fleet. Rodjestevenky is not a real factor in the operations of the war, but his failure or success may make a great difference in the willingness of the Tsar to accept terms of peace. There is still another consideration even more potent than the obstinacy of a military despot, and that is finance. It is clear that Russian resources and Russian credit are strained to breaking-point. The gold reserve may not all be exhausted, but the patience of French investors and German financiers is wearing out. The Russian debt coupons continue to be paid, but only by fresh and reckless borrowings, and the time must be near at hand when the stream will run dry. Then, if not before then, will peace become inevitable.

KAISER'S LATEST SENSATION.

HIS MAJESTY TO VISIT TANGIER

TANGIER, March 20. The announcement that the Emperor William will shortly visit Tangier is causing a sensation, coming as it does simultaneously with the reports that the French mission to Fez has completely failed. It is believed that the Sultan has appealed to Germany against the French pretensions; hence the Emperor's visit.

(Reuter.)

BERLIN, March 20.

The semi-official "Norddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung" reaffirms that Germany's interests in Morocco are purely economic. Hitherto there has been no reason to suppose that the Sultan intended entering into engagements which would curtail his independence or prevent the granting of equal commercial facilities to all. In this question, the interests of the world's trade have to be considered. (Reuter.)

INTERESTING TO TOURISTS.—A special train will leave Cairo to-morrow morning at 9.45 for Alexandria, to which carriages will be attached for the convenience of passengers for the Khedivial Mail steamer "Ismaïlia," sailing at 4 p.m. for Athens, Smyrna, and Constantinople. These special carriages will convey passengers alongside the vessel on the company's quay in the Arsenal basin.

BEAU-RIVAGE HOTEL.—This charming Rameih hotel has reopened for the summer season. Mrs. Luigi Steinschneider has transferred the direction of the hotel to Mr. G. Ruuckewitz, the well-known manager of the Anglo-American Company's Nile steamer "Victoria." The business will be continued on the same lines as have made the hotel so successful in the past. A large number of applications for rooms have already been received from tourists, who desire to pass a short time in the lovely neighbourhood of Rameih, before proceeding to face the cold weather in Europe.

WHAT NEXT?—So many companies have been recently started in Egypt, and with such varied objects, that people can with difficulty keep the run of them. Still, our confere the "Phare d'Alexandrie" need not have invented a new company, vide its financial article of yesterday, which announces "The Alexandria Central Railway Company," having amongst other objects the very singular one of exportation d'immeubles. When everybody is land grabbing it is very unkind to talk of exporting any. Perhaps Sir W. Garstin was not so far wrong in stopping land sales if that is what will happen.

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL, CAIRO.—The entertainment given by the girl pupils of St. Mary's School, Cairo, yesterday was very successful, the room being quite crowded. Lord and Lady Cromer, the Bishop in Jerusalem and the East, Dean Butler, etc., were present, and the performance was greatly enjoyed. There was really very little nervousness shown by the actors in the two little operettas performed, and the singing was true and in time. Miss A. Sarraf and the Misses Nimr performed well, and were well supported by the other members of the caste. Altogether a very pleasant little entertainment, at the conclusion of which Lord Cromer expressed his pleasure and satisfaction with all he had seen and heard, and congratulated the Rev. and Mrs. Odeh on the excellent results of their teaching.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY ON S.S. "ARABIC."—The members of the S.S. Arabic's athletic club were "at home" to the Royal Army Medical Corps and their friends on St. Patrick's Day. After a cricket match at Ras-el-Tin between the teams of the ship and the R.A.M.C. athletic club, the members of the R.A.M.C. and their friends went on board the "Arabic" and sat down to a splendid cold collation, to which every one did justice. During the evening a very enjoyable smoking concert was held. During the concert the company were honored with a visit from the captain and some of his friends, who seemed to thoroughly enjoy the concert. Speeches were made by the presidents of the respective teams, hoping they would soon have a chance of meeting again. Pressure on our space alone prevents us from publishing the excellent programme gone through.

THE LAND BANK OF EGYPT

Nous recevons de M. Rodocanachi une nouvelle lettre, dont voici le texte :
Monsieur le Directeur
de l'Egyptian Gazette,
Je refuse absolument d'engager avec vous une polémique de presse, comme vous semblez m'y inviter par la note dont vous avez accompagné la publication de ma lettre d'hier.
Je ne vous ai jamais demandé une leçon de français et peu m'importe de savoir à quel point je vous suis inconnu comme adversaire ou partisan de la "Land Bank". Veuillez donc me répondre simplement si vous assumez la responsabilité de la correspondance incriminée ou si vous êtes prêt à révéler le nom de celui qui, par prudence ou par pudeur, se cache derrière les voiles de l'anonymat.
La question est nettement posée, répondez-y nettement.
Agréez, monsieur, mes salutations distinguées.

C. P. RODOCANACHI.
Alexandrie, le 19 Mars 1905.

[N.D.L.B.—Nous sommes surpris de l'insistance de M. Rodocanachi. La note que nous avons publiée et dont il parle ici constitue une réponse aussi nette que possible. En la relisant il verra pourquoi nous n'avons pas de compte à lui rendre.]

BULLETIN DE LA BOURSE

(Aujourd'hui à midi et demie)

Le marché a été absolument nul aujourd'hui. En prévision de la fermeture cette après-midi, on s'est contenté de réaliser, ce qui a produit une légère réaction.

La Banque Nationale fléchit à 27 5/16, l'Investment à 27 1/32, la Wardian à 7 1/8, le Salt & Soda à 41/3, l'Anglo-American Nile à 5 5/8, les Privileges Tramways à 146 1/2, et la Ramleh Railway à 7 13/16.

C'est parce qu'on ne connaît pas encore le résultat de la souscription qu'on baisse en Bourses. Dès que la répartition sera connue, on pourra s'avancer autrement qu'à l'aveuglette.

The Best Remedy for Delicate Children

It is really wonderful how rapidly puny, delicate children gain in weight, strength, and colour when they are given Angier's Emulsion systematically. The reason is simple. By its effect upon nutrition, it enables the child to get from his food all the good there is in it. It is therefore an ideal "builder." The little ones all like the Emulsion and take it with real pleasure. Moreover it is perfectly simple and safe even for the most delicate infants. Doctors prescribe it for all wasting diseases of children.

(LACTOGEN WITH HYPOPHOSPHITES).
In three sizes: of Chemists and Bazaars.
Avoid imitations—all of which are made with ordinary petroleum. Be sure to get Angier's.

GENERAL BOOTH'S VISIT TO JERUSALEM.

THE SULTAN'S FEARS.

A REMARKABLE PROCLAMATION.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT).

Jerusalem, March 12.

General Booth, the "Father" and founder of the Salvation Army, arrived here in the afternoon of the 8th inst. on his first visit to the Holy Land, accompanied by Commissioner Nicol, Major Cox, and other officers of his staff, having been preceded a few days previously by Colonel Lawley, his private secretary, and Colonel Russell, Under-Secretary for "Foreign Affairs," to make all necessary arrangements in connection with the General's visit to the Holy City.

It appears, however, that before leaving England the Turkish Embassy in London was communicated with in order that they might obtain the Porte's sanction for holding an open-air public meeting at Jerusalem, and that they received assurances that their application would be attended to. The suspicions of the Ottoman Government, however, were aroused as to the real object of a meeting in Jerusalem, considering the title of the organisation, and more especially their motto "Blood and Fire," which sounds to a Turk not unlike that of a revolutionary body. Orders were consequently sent to the Governor of Jerusalem not to allow General Booth and his followers to hold or address meetings in public and to take all precautions to prevent Ottoman subjects attending any of their meetings.

These unexpected injunctions caused disappointment to the aged leader and his party, but the difficulty put in their way was overcome by an arrangement with the American Missionary Alliance to use their "tabernacle" as a gathering-place, and accordingly a series of meetings were held in that hall. On each occasion the place was densely crowded with people of all sects and denominations to hear General Booth's addresses, which were translated into the vernacular Arabic. The inhabitants were much impressed by the earnestness and noble qualities of the great preacher, who was listened to with deep interest throughout, the braided tunics and red jerseys attracting at the same time no little attention.

On Saturday, 11th inst., the principal European residents, including the Consular Body and the heads of the Christian religious missions and communities, were invited to meet General Booth at the Hotel Hughes. Most of those invited attended, and after the usual introductions the General spoke of the romance of his work, and of the shaping of that great fabric which is known to-day as the Salvation Army, relating how 35 years ago he was denounced, persecuted, and ridiculed as an eccentric fanatic, but that despite all opposition he had resolved to convert the slums of the great cities of the world, and with perseverance had worked on, resting in God and the Gospel to give him victory sooner or later. How he toiled from one road to another, regardless of all criticism and opposition, until he laid a solid foundation, and he felt proud in saying that now the rich and the poor, the king and the peasant, the Christian and outcast, all recognised that he had introduced a new and effective agency to battle with misery, misfortune, vice, and crime through Christian charity, to which work he dedicated the whole of his life.

The speech in general was a review of the organization. General Booth enumerated the branches of the work, and the number of the institutions and homes founded in 49 different countries of the world, giving details and figures as to their inmates, and the enormous masses benefiting by those charities.

He referred with a feeling of gratitude and emotion to his visit to Jerusalem as one of the happiest events of his life. It was, he said, a great privilege bestowed upon him by His Master to spare him until now to fulfil a life-time's dream. At the close of his speech the general received a splendid ovation from the audience, and the British Consul proposed a vote of thanks to General Booth for the interesting address, to which he briefly responded.

Despite his 76 years, General Booth is a hale and potent figure, vibrant with the energy which testifies to an earnest purpose within. It is impossible to view his patriarchal presence without an instinctive deference to the degree of greatness which alone can set a man on such a pedestal of esteem and obedience as he occupies. Though not gifted with eloquence or suavity of speech he possesses a homely ingenueness, a friendly naïveté which is over nobody's head, and a sympathy as broad as his purpose is direct.

General Booth visited all the important historical places in and around Jerusalem, and the most noteworthy event in connection with his visit is that of his reading and signing the following proclamation on Gordon's Calvary, which was done privately in the presence of his suite and a few friends. During the signing of the document the Salvation Army banner was unfurled over the head of the General. He leaves Jerusalem to-day for Jaffa and will embark to-morrow for Port Said on his way to Australia for the third time.

The following is the text of General Booth's proclamation:—
"On behalf of the outcasts, a call from Jerusalem to all who name the name of Christ throughout the world.

"The dream of a lifetime is fulfilled. I am in Jerusalem, at the very heart of scenes for ever hallowed by my Lord and Master's life, sufferings, and death.

"I have visited Bethlehem and in imagination listened to the Seraphic anthems with which the Angels ushered Him unto the world. I have walked the streets of the city once trodden by His sacred feet. I have stood on the brow of Olivet, and gazed in deepest sympathy on the pining tears wept over the God-forsaken people who were about to shed his blood.

"I have looked on other places made memorable by their connection with the tragic incidents of His earthly career. For instance, they have shown me the Pool of Siloam, the village of Bethany, while in the distance they have pointed out to me Nazareth, Jericho, and the Jordan. They have shown me the reputed sites on which the Temple stood; the place of the Master's betrayal; the Palace of Herod; and the Judgment Hall where Pilate condemned Him to die. And as I thought upon that Hall I saw once more the Crown of Thorns; the Mocking Robe, the Mimic Reed, the cruel scourging, while down through the ages I seemed to hear again the frantic cries of the mob, 'Crucify Him, Crucify Him!'

"With indescribable feelings I have prayed in Gethsemane Garden, ascended the Hill called 'Calvary,' and worshipped with reverent awe on the very ground where the Cross of Shame was erected on which my Lord purchased by His broken heart sufficient Sovereign-saving grace to meet the needs of the whole human race.

I have looked into the empty sepulchre where cold in the arms of death my Saviour lay. Then passing on I have wonderingly beheld the mount from whose summit He ascended triumphant over death and Hell to plead with the Father the cause of the world. He had so gloriously redeemed. And as my eyes rested on those sacred scenes, again and again has the question suggested itself, 'Why all this suffering, why did He die, and for what did He die?' And then I have remembered the answer which came from His own blessed lips. Luke XIX. 10.

"That was His commission received from the Father, and as His Father commissioned Him, so He commissioned His Disciples. And if we are His disciples our task is the same, namely: the Salvation of the Lost.

"About the length and breadth of that commission there can be no mistake. Beyond question it comprehended then and comprehended to-day the conditional deliverance of every one from sin, irrespective of nationality, character, and condition.—'By the Grace of God He tasted for every man,' 'Whosoever cometh to Him He will in nowise cast out,' 'He was and is still the Saviour of the world.'

"Judging from the state of the world to-day, has not the unbeliever some ground for pronouncing the Mission of Christ a failure?

"Notwithstanding all our proud boasting respecting the advancement of the world, could this outcast section be much more unlike the kingdom of Heaven He came to establish, or more closely resemble the kingdom of Hell?

"Look at the brutal, selfish, senseless, inhuman wars by which the poorer classes are the greater sufferers.

"Look at the chronic state of starvation, in which millions slowly waste and bitterly wait until delivered from their misery by the pauper grave.

"Look at the countless array of drunkards held in the iron chains of demoralising appetite. Think of their desolate wives, children and homes, their rapid march to the jaws of death, their exclusion from Heaven and their doom in Hell.

"Look at the hideous slavery involved in the shameless harlotry abounding in the centres of Christianity, with all the debasing results that follow in its train.

"Look at the melancholy multitude of criminals shut behind prison bars, for whose regeneration, for this world or the next, little or no intelligent effort is made.

"Look at the gay, frivolous crowds abounding everywhere, who in the paltriest pursuits waste the sacred opportunities given them to bless their fellows, and prepare to meet their God.

"Look at the dark Heathen World, numbering some three-fourths of the earth's population utterly ignorant of the mercy of Jesus, and largely abandoned to conditions of poverty and vice, pitiable to contemplate.

"Comrades and friends, belonging to every section of Christian and philanthropic work, look at the waste howling wilderness of unbelief and wretchedness only vaguely pictured here.

"Look at it. Oh! look with the eyes and feelings with which the Great Christ viewed it, when He climbed this sacred Hill, and with which He looks at it to-day and says, will you not do something special for these sufferers?

"I am not oblivious to the Christianising effort made by the Soldiers of the Cross in the past, nor to the work which is being done by them in the present for the more favored classes of society.

"I am not unmindful of the noble temples that have been erected, the intellectual creeds that have been formulated, the impressive ceremonies that have been organised, or the powerful organisations that have been created.

"Neither do I overlook the fight now being made in every corner of the globe for the benefit of the people whose interests I plead.

"I thank God for all this loving toil, but it does seem to me that the time has more than come when, in imitation of our blessed Master, we should one and all, as it were, leave the Heaven of comfortable satisfaction which we have reached, and go further out and deeper down than ever before into this ocean of depravity, devilry and woe,—this veritable Hell upon earth, to rescue its captive victims.

"All followers of Jesus Christ to-day are sufficiently powerful in number, wealth and ability to grapple effectively with these miserable masses, and at the risk of being thought guilty of presumption, standing here on the sacred Mount, I feel I must send forth a call to them to come along with their wealth and learning, their ability and influence, and make a united fight to save the people.

"Let us make a great fight.

"To save them from their cruel starvation by transplanting them to more favorable, or, more rationally, helping them in their own conditions.

"To save them from their horrid vices by taking them to Christ, who will change their characters."

"To save them from their paralyzing despair by inspiring them with hope.

"To save them from coming destruction by the Salvation of God. He saves to the uttermost.

"Comrades, friends, strangers! Do not pass these words by because my name has no place on the high roll of Church dignitaries, or is unrecognised by any popular School of Philosophy, or is not endorsed with the authority of any powerful Government.

"If the call is in harmony with the mission of Jesus Christ, the instincts of your own nature, the urging of the Holy Spirit, or the needs of a suffering world, listen to it and in some manner strive to give it effect.

"Turn to the men, women, and children who need your help the most, and nearest to you, and go to work at once, and if no other means of rescue are at hand, avail yourselves of the services of my own dear people, but do something.

"By the hell the poor creatures already suffer,

"By the destruction on the verge of which they linger,

"By the abundant mercy provided for them,

"By the deliverance we have proved so possible,

"By the Agony of the Cross under the shadow of which I make this appeal,

"I plead for a united, a desperate and a persistent effort to save the lost.

"The Blessing of Heaven be with all those who live and serve the Lord Jesus Christ in sincerity.

Your Servant for Christ's sake,
(Signed) WILLIAM BOOTH,
General of the Salvation Army.

EGYPTIAN COTTON MILLS.
TO THE EDITOR OF THE "EGYPTIAN GAZETTE."
Sir,—In the absence of any published reports, it is difficult to enter into the merits of the case, but I am informed that the continued depreciation in the shares of the Cotton Mills is owing to their indebtedness to the Government, to the extent of £3,000 or £4,000, for taxes, which the company is unable to pay, and that in consequence the mills are to be closed, after a chequered career since their establishment in 1899.
The shareholders are not admitted into the confidence of the board of directors, but it is difficult to believe that if the directors were to approach the "Master-mind," to save this feeble industry from being completely strangled by the 8% tax imposed by Government, that he would not give the matter his impartial attention, and place the company in a more satisfactory position towards Government and towards its shareholders.—I am, etc., n'hésitez pas à se purger, quand elles en ont besoin. Elles se purgent et se débarrassent de la fatigue, parce que, à l'opposé des autres purgatives, celles-ci n'opèrent pas lorsqu'il est pris avec de bons aliments et des boissons fortifiantes, telles que vin, café, etc. Chacune choisit, pour se purger, l'heure et le régime qui lui conviennent le mieux, selon ses occupations. Le régime de la purgation étant annulé par l'effet de la bonne alimentation, on se décide aisément à recommencer avant de le faire que cela est nécessaire.
